Karen Jordan became involved with JDRF when her daughter Ali was diagnosed with T1D in 2008. She is a member of the International Board of Directors and is Chair of the Research Committee. She also serves on the T1D Fund Board and Audit & Risk Committee. She is a member of the GBA Chapter Board and serves as the Chapter's Research Chair.

She is also the lead volunteer for the JDRF Northern California Center of Excellence at Stanford and UCSF. She is the inaugural recipient of JDRF's John Brady Award for Innovation.

Her previous non-profit work includes service on different boards including, among others, Starlight Children's Foundation, Stanford GSB Alumni Association and the Portola Valley School District.

She was a member of the group who founded Summit Prep, a charter school profiled in Waiting for Superman. She also serves on the Stanford Healthcare Community Council and the Stanford Athletics Board.

Karen earned her B.A. in Economics-Business from UCLA and her MBA from the Stanford University GSB. She has completed TPW's year-long program on strategic philanthropy. She has worked as an investment banker and with the Mayor's Office in Los Angeles.

Elizabeth Caswell is from Ann Arbor, MI. Her family began participating in the JDRF One Walk in 2008. In 2020, her family Walk team's total fundraising exceeded $.5M. Elizabeth chaired the Ann Arbor JDRF One Walk Planning Committee for four years.

Elizabeth joined the JDRF Michigan and Northern Ohio Chapter Board in 2014 and joined the Executive Committee in 2016. She chaired the 2018 and 2019 JDRF Journey for T1D event in Ann Arbor. In its first two years, the event raised over $300,000.

Elizabeth joined the JDRF International Board of Directors in July 2020. She is serving her fourth term on the JDRF International Research Committee and is in her first term as Vice-Chair. She enjoys providing updates on the JDRF mission and research across the country. Elizabeth also serves on the Board's Fundraising Committee.

In 2019, Elizabeth received the JDRF Huntsman Community Engagement Award for her service to the organization.

Elizabeth is a full-time parent and volunteer. She and her husband Trey have three sons. Three of Elizabeth's family members have T1D. Elizabeth has a BA from Duke University, an MA in Psychology from University of Texas-Austin, and an MPP from University of Chicago.
